POWERS, MOANERS AND GROANERS

There was at one time a theory that little kids were really just miniature adults. That has gone with the wind. For kids can think in their own way. True, the conclusions that they come to may surprise you. I had taken my class down to the street level as a result of a fire drill practice. We walked around the block. And from some upper stories of houses, came garbage down upon us. Banana peels, orange peels, three dirty bags, and an old cloth. Sort of floating down to the street level.

When we came back to our class room I said to the class the following

"You all saw what came down to the street from up above. Tomorrow, I assign Peter Donaldson to head a discussion on the causes of this."

I wanted to see if the students could see the connection between pollution and the actions of human beings. And so came the next day. Peter Donaldson got up in front of the class.

"We all saw what happened yesterday when we were walking along the street. While we were in line this morning waiting to come to class, I talked it over with some of you. And we all came to one conclusion. It was the definite fault of the Astronauts. They must have left that stuff on the Moon. And it just flew off and came down to Earth where we were. Lucky for us we weren't touched or hurt by it. But we all agreed that if it happens again, we ask our parents to write a protest to Washington."

I opened my mouth to say something. But my better judgement told me to say nothing. I merely smiled and then went on with the history lesson. And the topic was "Alexander the Great." But it took Jimmy Alerman to give us something new in an interpretation of Great Men.

"Alexander the Great was born at the wrong time," he told us. "Poor fellow. I am really sorry for him. I figure he conquered most of the known world at that time. Gee, he certainly was a great general. But from there, where could he go? So you can see why he was discouraged. No advancement. He was the tops. Now if he had been born today, things would be different. We were talking about the Astronauts and the Moon. He could have got together a big army. Invaded the Moon. And then gone on to Mars, Venus, and other planets."

Coming to think of it, maybe he had something there. Anyway, the class was serious as he spoke. I then talked about "Antiquity." I asked if anyone knew anybody who had something very old in his possession. At least a thousand years old. Marjorie raised her hand.

"The man who lives next door to us has something that must be about three thousand years old. And he still uses it."

I was completely puzzled. So I asked her what it was that was so old.

"His automobile," she told me. "And he took my mother and me for a ride to the shopping center. It must be that old. Because he has a sign on back and the same sign on front. Telling its age."

"What kind of a sign?" I wanted to know. "I never saw such a sign on any car."

"It is on his license plate," explained Marjorie. "It reads, B C 1379."

Just shows you how some ordinary things that we don't even notice, can have an entirely different effect on children. John raised his hand.

"I saw a license plate like this A D 640. Does that mean it is more than 1300 years old?"

I knew when I was beaten. So I immediately gave out paper for a spelling test. Until we meet again, and then more about my students.
